

Lieutenant General (ret.) Keith Kellogg
Assistant to the President and
Special Presidential Envoy for Russia and Ukraine

General Keith Kellogg currently serves as Assistant to the President and Special Presidential Envoy for Ukraine and Russia. A statesman, diplomat, and retired U.S. army lieutenant general, he has extensive experience in military and foreign affairs, national security, and international business.

During President Trump's first term in office, General Kellogg served as the National Security Advisor to the Vice President and as the Executive Secretary and Chief of Staff of the National Security Council. Kellogg retired from the military in 2003 after a distinguished 36-year career that included several overseas deployments. He has wide-ranging experience in Europe, the Pacific, the Middle East, and Africa. Kellogg is also a noted author and Fox News contributor.

President Trump selected Kellogg to be Special Envoy for Russia and Ukraine in November 2024. Prior to his selection, Kellogg co-chaired the Center for American Security at the America First Policy Institute, in Washington, DC.

Kellogg was born in Dayton, Ohio, grew up in California, and -- 23 global and stateside military moves later -- settled in Virginia. He graduated from Santa Clara University with a degree in political science and later earned a master's degree in international studies from Kansas University.

Kellogg and his wife, Paige, have three children.
